DATA RULES EVERYTHING AROUND ME

A CONVERSATION SERIES BY NETIZEN & MOZILLA

How Detroit Residents Built Their Own Internet with Diana Nucera

With mega-mergers and fewer options for Internet access, we're being forced into paying higher prices for slower speeds. Internet service providers can now legally prioritize their own services, filter websites, and spy on our traffic.

But fear not! People like Diana Nucera are working with communities to build their own networks and create their own ISPs.

Join us for conversation about her experiences in rallying communities to build their own infrastructure with neighborhood values at their core.
