DATA RULES EVERYTHING AROUND ME

A CONVERSATION SERIES BY NETIZEN & MOZILLA

Recasting Digital Shadows
with Becca Ricks

Logged In From by Becca Ricks, 2017

The trails of data we leave online plug us into categories that can shape—and potentially limit—who we think we are. Social platforms and algorithms are exerting unchecked power over our bodies and behavior.

But fear not! People like Becca Ricks are creatively exploring how to rectify, obfuscate, embody, and recast our digital shadows.

Join us as we peer at our networked reflections and consider how we can reclaim our online identities.

As a 2017-2018 Ford-Mozilla Open Web Fellow at Human Rights Watch, Becca's work explores how social platforms collect data about their users and how those systems deepen existing social inequalities.

Data Rules Everything Around Me (D.R.E.A.M.) is a FREE & OPEN conversation series facilitated by Nick Briz & Jon Satrom. Artists, writers, developers, and other cultural producers discuss their research and perspectives on the data that fuels the systems that run our world.
